

POLITICAL SCIENCE IN Washington DC

Internship sites

There is a vast field of internships for Political Science students. Some of these internships include

- Congressional Internships
- U.S. Agency for International Development
- The United States Secret Service

Classes to take

More info on classes link: UCDC Courses

- General Research
- International Policy
- U.S. Supreme Court
- Washington Media
- Congress and Politics in Washington
- American Political Journalism
- Campaigns and Elections
- Lobbying Money & Influence in DC
- Politics & Poems (Spring semester)

Things to do

- Field-trip to Congress
- Attend a Monday Night Forum
- Visit New York, Boston, Gettysburg, Philadelphia
- Network with high officials
- Tour embassies in D.C.
- "Get coffee" with D.C. professionals
- Tour graduate and law schools

Contact your advisor

Be sure to contact your advisor for any questions you may have. A good resource is the following link:

<http://ssha-advising.ucmerced.edu/>

Welcome to UCDC

The mission of the Political Science program is to push forward the boundaries of the discipline, and train graduate and undergraduate students to consume and produce sophisticated modern empirical and theoretical research. The rigorous methodological graduate training that students receive at UC Merced places them at the leading edge of the social sciences. We use a unique approach to graduate training, focused on Political Institutions & Political Economy (PIPE) and Political Cognition & Behavior (CAB), guaranteeing that students will have a comprehensive and creative understanding of politics. We believe in inter-disciplinary research, crossing boundaries and finding new frontiers, so students are also encouraged to work with faculty from other disciplines such as cognitive science, psychology, economics, sociology, and philosophy to enrich their education.

<http://polisci.ucmerced.edu/>